1 Dead, 5 Hurt In Crash At 22-104

3 Young Men, Two Women Are Injured

Nearby Resident Heard Noise, Saw Cars 'Up In Air'

A 52 year-old Lancaster, Pa., man was killed instantly and five others injured Friday in a two car collision at the intersection of Routes 104 and 22, four miles west of Circleville. The accident occurred at 11:30 a. m. during a steady rain. All the injured were taken to Berger Hospital.

Earl Stauffer, the dead man, was the driver of one of the cars, a late model Cadillac. Two of the injured were passengers in his car. They were his wife, Lucille Stauffer, 39, with severe knee lacerations and 19-year-old Jane Geist, with chest and back injuries, who had been brought along as a baby sitter for eight-month-old Earl Charles Stauffer.

Miraculously, the infant, who had been in a crib in the back seat of the car, was not hurt. The second car contained three Columbus men, one of whom was seriously injured, according to the sheriff's department here.

DONALD S. SHOCKEY, 22, was the driver and his injuries were determined. Burley Woods, 20, had nose and skull fractures, internal injuries and hemorrhages and multiple lacerations. Harley Bailey, 18, suffered broken ribs, severe shock and multiple lacerations. Shockey, Woods and Bailey were taken to University Hospital in Columbus.

According to authorities, the car containing the young men was going south on Route 104.

Unemployment In April Off By 250,000

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government reports unemployment declined 260,000 in April, the first jobless drop since last October.

Employment increased by nearly half a million in the month.

The encouraging job report was issued jointly by Secretary of Labor Mitchell and Secretary of Commerce Weeks in a new combined release of data available to both departments.

In their joint announcement the two Cabinet officers said not only did employment increase and unemployment decline in April, as measured during the week ended April 10, but "there was evidence unemployment continued to decline as the month progressed."

Unemployment was reported at 3,465,000 or 260,000 less than the 3,725,000 jobless counted in March. Employment increased by 498,000 between March and April, rising from 60,100,000 to 60,598,000.

The jobless drop was largely attributed to the usual seasonal pick-up in outdoor activities. Unemployment had declined between March and April in all but two of the past dozen years.

Some improvement over March, is still the second largest jobless total for April since World War II. It compares with 3,515,000 unemployed in April of 1950, the postwar high for the month.

Toledo Bus Firm Gets Court Order

TOLEDO (AP)—Without public transportation for 11 days Toledo will have its bus service resumed tomorrow morning.

A court ordered Community Traction Co. yesterday to comply, at least temporarily, with provisions of an award granting employees pay raises which will come to 21 cents an hour.

The AFL bus drivers union representing 435 drivers and mechanics approved the terms of the order and voted to end their strike.

The award was made by a three-man board April 9 following arbitration. But the company, claiming terms were not binding because its representative walked off the board, refused to follow its provisions.

She is Sidney Elaine Graves, of Kingston Route 1, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Graves. Announcement was made Thursday evening at a banquet held in Columbus to honor seven district essay winners. Miss Graves was presented a check for $200 for her award-winning essay, "Conservation Paves the Way."

Essay writing is a new field for Miss Graves. She is better known for dress designing and modeling, having won many 4-H awards for her work.

She is in her sixth year as a member of Logan Elm Sunny Sewers, and has been a first place winner four times in Pickaway County Fair. She modeled her sports costume last fall at Ohio State Fair, receiving an "A" grade.

She is active in Emmett Chapel church and is a member of Logan Elm Grange. She and her mother were featured on the cover of an issue of a farm magazine as winners in national competition in a Mother-Daughter Sew Show.

Second-place award of $100 went to Freeda M. Moore, of Piedmont Route 1, a senior in Flushing High School. Third place honors and $50 went to Franklin Mellick of Tiffin Route 1, a senior at Eden Township School.

All seven district winners were presented with bronze engraved plaques by Dean Wilbur Wood of the College of Agriculture, Ohio State University. Other district winners include: Ned L. Gott, Oberlin; Katherine Hill, Mantua; Willis Vetter, Wapakoneta; and Marilyn Cook, Camden.

Dulles Readies 2-Stage Plan To Fight Reds

Military Conferences To Start Program To Save Southeast Asia

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles has developed a two-stage program for organizing an anti-Communist coalition in Southeast Asia and hopes it will produce a provisional arrangement in a matter of weeks.

Dulles is due to hold a series of diplomatic discussions here shortly for the first stage of negotiations. Officials said today it seems certain to begin with a military staff conference.

The military conference, and possibly other diplomatic talks, would be designed to produce a provisional security arrangement to stand until later second-stage talks eventually resulted in a formal security treaty.

A minimum of five and a maximum of 10 or a dozen countries could be represented in the first conferences. Authorities said the British have agreed to cooperate, and they termed this a forward step. Previously the Churchill government had withheld joining in Dulles' proposed "united action" pending efforts for an Indochina peace settlement at Geneva.

DULLES WILL report to the nation by radio and television tonight on Indochina and on other subjects, notably the Korean peace deadlock, with which he dealt at Geneva last week with Allied nations and the Communists.

The broadcast is scheduled for 8:30 p. m. EST. Advance information was that he would emphasize his and President Eisenhower's resolve, despite disappointments so far, to form a united front with friendly nations aimed at saving Southeast Asia from Communist conquest.

Nearly 200 people attended the banquet held in the Gold Room of Fort Hayes Hotel. Representatives from the counties of the district winners as well as state and Ohio State University officials were present for the occasion.

Recipients of the new permits include Fraternal Order of Eagles, Blancheater.

Dems Toss Back GOP Slogan: 'Clean Up Mess In Capital'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Democrats have put up a cry for the Eisenhower Administration to be done with "eireas luxuries" and "TV spectacles" and come up with action to prevent a cold war from blowing hot.

The Republican campaign slogan of 1952, "Clean Up the Mess in Washington," was thrown back at the party in power last night at a Jefferson-Jackson dinner.

Speakers told the cheering throng that Republicans have created "messes of their own" in the McCarthy-Pentagon row and have suffered serious "reversals" on the Indochina question.

Unlike many previous $100-a-plate dinners by the Democrats in Washington, last night's glittering affair was generously attended by Southerners. They sat alongside old "New Dealers" and "Fair Dealers" in a show of unity.

Former President Truman, who with his family, was a featured guest, told the diners in a brief informal talk:

"AS LEADERS of the free world we must have the friendship of our allies and we can't have that if we insult them."

Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, Senate Democratic floor leader, declared the Eisenhower administration has been "caught bluffing by our enemies" and this country now stands in danger of being "left alone in a hostile world."

Stevens Says Under Oath That Joe's Aides Threaten

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of the Army Stevens swore today Sen. McCarthy's aides threatened him if Pvt. G. David Schine failed to get favored treatment.

They made "exceedingly serious" threats, Stevens told the Senate subcommittee investigating the McCarthy-Army row.

And, Stevens declared, he had a distinct impression from McCarthy, as well as from the senator's aides, that the more the Army did for Schine the less "hammering" the Army would be subjected to from the McCarthy committee.

Schine, a member of a multi-millionaire New York family, was an unpaid consultant to the McCarthy subcommittee until he was drafted last fall.

The McCarthy-Army row revolves about Army contentions the senator and his aides made improper efforts to get preferential treatment for Schine and McCarthy's countercharges the Army tried to shut off the senator's investigations of the Army.

McCarthy hammered questions at Stevens and the usually mild-mannered secretary, in his 12th day in the witness chair, snapped back with a sharpness not displayed before.

Pressed by McCarthy to say whether Roy M. Cohn, the McCarthy subcommittee's chief counsel, and Francis P. Carr, its staff director, had ever "threatened" him, Stevens maintained they had.

He said because of the subcommittee's search for espionage at

Ft. Monmouth, N. J., "taken in conjunction with the constant discussion of Schine, it was my feeling that they were threatening me."

"If I did not do something, they were going to do something," Stevens said.

In response to McCarthy's urging to be specific, Stevens cited what he called Cohn's "declaration of war" against the Army after Cohn was denied admittance to a secret radar laboratory at Ft. Monmouth on Oct. 20 and a meeting he had with Cohn and Carr in his Pentagon office Nov. 1.

CHS Year-End Program Now In Full Swing

Those good old vacation days—and the last of all the school days for some—are beginning to loom large on the horizon for the boys and girls in classrooms all over the district.

Reflecting the fact that May is well on its way, and June preparing to bust out all over, Circleville High School announced Friday its remaining program for End of the Year activities. Two events are being held Friday—the Hi-Y Banquet in the high school social rooms and the Countywide Dance at Pickaway County Fairgrounds Coliseum.

Next Tuesday, the annual Music Festival will be held at the high school auditorium, and next Thursday the S.O.S. Mother-and-Daughter Banquet is scheduled for the Presbyterian Church. The Hi-Y Cake Walk will be held next Friday in the high school social rooms.

Traffic Blinker Put At Leistville

The State Highways Department announced Friday a special, new-type overhead flasher signal has been installed at Leistville's "Dead Man's Crossing." The signal went into operation late Thursday.

"This type of light was designed especially for us for specific purposes," commented S. O. Linzell, director of the highway department. "It is a four way signal. Yellow lights flash in two directions while red flashes in the other two."

For the present, two red lights will flash in a general north-south direction covering Route 159. The amber faces Route 56, which is generally east-west. The stop signs, which govern the approach to the intersection on 159, will remain to supplement the red lights.

"Through surveys conducted by this department," Linzell added, "we have found that these signals have effectively cut accident rates. There are approximately 20 of these lights in operation throughout the state at the present time."

ED WALLACE, Pickaway County state representative, recently asked Governor Frank J. Lausche to order a new safety study of the notorious intersection. The governor replied he was calling Linzell's attention to Wallace's letter.

"Dead Man's Crossing" has long been the subject of safety studies because of the high rate of accidents and fatalities there. In the past two years there have been six deaths due to accidents at the intersection.

The Leistville problem early this year was placed before the Pickaway County grand jury for consideration of safety moves.

A short time later, Linzell announced 11 recommendations had been made by his department, and that the blinker light was one of them. Two others were to have a curve straightened near the crossing, and to overhaul the signs posted around the crossing.

One of the main points of contention is the curve. In Wallace's letter to the governor he says,

"There is a dangerous curve on 56 coming west toward Circleville at 159. There are stop signs on 159 and when they stop and get started to cross 56 the motorist coming west on 56 cannot see them until it is too late to avoid a crash."

WILLIAM AMMER, county prosecutor, also brought the matter to the highway department's attention. He asked for early attention and received a reply on April 20 from Linzell that safety work would soon begin.

Further surveys will be made by the highways department to determine the effectiveness of this signal.

It's Pie Traynor And Third Base Today, Fellas!

A lifetime batting average of .320 during his 17 years in the majors, all of them with the Pittsburgh Pirates of the National League, that's the tremendous record of Harold (Pie) Traynor, Hall of Fame third baseman and a true wizard in the art of guarding the game's hot corner.

In today's issue of The Herald, he passes along a lot of his advice to Pickaway County youngsters who are looking forward to the 1954 "kid baseball" season.

It's the second of a series of seven stories on how to play the National Game, written especially for boys of the beginner classes but filled with valuable tips for the experienced players too.

Pickaway County's young baseballers will find Traynor's story on the sport pages, but they'll have to grab fast for the paper! A lot of baseball-minded fathers who recall Pie Traynor of the 1930's may beat them to it!

French Chief Tells Of Loss In Indochina

Fate Of Gen. DeCastries Not Known; Lone Outpost Said Holding

PARIS (AP)—Dien Bien Phu has fallen to the Red rebels. Premier Joseph Laniel announced late today the northwest Indochina bastion "has been submerged."

A little outpost named Isabelle, site of the French Union garrison's main artillery, was still holding out three miles south of the bloodied, muddled bastion that had epitomized the Indochina war to the world for 57 days.

One of the last orders Brig. Gen. Christian DeCastries, the commander in chief, gave to Isabelle was to fire on his own command post when the Communist-led rebel riflemen cut through and keep on firing.

There was no immediate word as the fate of Gen. DeCastries, nor that of Genevieve de Galard Ter-raube, a French nurse and the only woman in the besieged fort. She had been decorated for gallantry twice within the week.

Premier Laniel told the National Assembly counterattacks had been launched in a vain effort to block the rebels from making a juncture in attacks from the northeast and the southwest, but the defense efforts failed.

"THE GOVERNMENT has just learned that Dien Bien Phu has been submerged after 20 hours of uninterrupted combat," Laniel said. "The French reaction will be the reaction of the virility of a great nation."

He added France will confirm its instructions to its delegates at Geneva without admitting that the defeat of Dien Bien Phu can change anything.

Meanwhile in Geneva, the Big Three Western powers decided to propose to the Communists the Indochinese peace talks begin tomorrow afternoon.

The last apparent obstacle for the opening of the talks was removed when the French agreed to have the chairmanship rotate between British Foreign Secretary (Continued on Page Two)

Ohio Solon's Seaway Speech 'Swings' Votes

WASHINGTON (AP)—A former vigorous opponent of the St. Lawrence Seaway, Rep. Secrest (D-Ohio) said today he influenced "at least a dozen" anti-seaway congressmen into voting for U. S. participation in the project.

The House passed seaway legislation yesterday, 241-158.

Secrest said he persuaded some opponents to change their votes when he delivered a speech during debate preceding the rollcall. He insisted that if Canada built the sea way alone "it could ruin every east-west railroad in the country."

In the speech, which was frequently applauded, Secrest said Canada by itself could set tolls so low that shipping through the waterway would mean ruinous competition for the roads. The roads have opposed the project.

"I don't think the railroads themselves had thought of that angle," said Secrest later. "I had at least a dozen congressmen from states like Florida and New Mexico congratulate me after the speech."

"They told me they had changed their minds on the basis of my speech."

In his speech, Secrest also said Canada could collect enough on tolls for iron ore shipments to permit other commodities such as residual oil, pottery and glass to enter toll-free. This would damage competing industries in the Midwest, he said.

Ohio Surgical Unit Raps Fee-Splitting

COLUMBUS (AP)—The newly organized Ohio Society of Osteopathic Surgeons today condemned fee-splitting and said it would deny membership to any surgeon involved in that or any other unethical practice.

Fee-splitting is the practice of referring a patient to another physician with the purpose of splitting the additional fee. The society was organized this week during the annual convention of the Ohio Osteopathic Assn. of Physicians and Surgeons.

Laboratory "Commies have free access."
"I say Commies do not have free access to those laboratories," Stevens flared.
Earlier in the session McCarthy had denounced one of the original Army charges against the McCarthy camp as "this lie." He was ordered to withdraw the word.
Ray H. Jenkins, special counsel to the Senate investigations subcommittee, sternly told the senator his language was improper in a question to Stevens.
Chairman Mundt (R-SD) ruled McCarthy could ask whether the charge was "true or false."
The charge, originally put out by the Army but not included in the formal Army bill of specifications for the McCarthy-Army hearings, was to the effect that Cohn was so "upset" by Army handling of Schine he could not attend a luncheon Dec. 10.
McCarthy said Cohn had "exploded that lie" in telling about the matter on a TV program. He asked Stevens whether it was not true that Cohn did not attend the luncheon because Cohn's father was ill in New York.
The luncheon, at the Carroll Arms Hotel here, was attended by McCarthy, Francis P. Carr, chief of the McCarthy committee staff, and Stevens.
Stevens testified the charge was not "false." He insisted Carr had told him at the luncheon that Cohn was very upset about Schine.

tary Anthony Eden and Soviet Foreign Minister Vyacheslav M. Molotov. This was understood to be satisfactory to the Communists.

"France will recall to its allies that during seven years it has never quit defending alone a great region of Asia," Laniel told the assembly in Paris.

All the deputies in the assembly stood while Laniel announced the fort's fall, except the Communists. They remained seated.

Gen. Ho Nguyen Giap's rebel siege forces, bidding for victory before the Geneva conference started negotiations for an end to the seven-year-old war, outnumbered Decastries' garrison by 4-to-1.

DE CASTRIES was estimated on the eve of the showdown battle to have 14,000 men, including wounded, at his command. These were Frenchmen, Foreign Legionnaires, Vietnamese and North Africans. There were about 1,000 wounded in underground bunkers of the fort. All efforts for a truce to evacuate them had failed.

At about noon today, the French news agency in Hanoi said the Vietnam had captured four of the nine remaining strongpoints around the fortress and were menacing a fifth.

It was the 170th day of rebel encirclement of the stronghold in northwest Indochina; the 57th day of siege battle.

The rebels' three-way strike again reflected the coaching of their Red Chinese military advisers and technicians.

At all points, the human wave system was used to make up in manpower the French advantage in firepower. Bugle calls and screams mingled with the tumult of rifle shots and grenades.

Bloody hand-to-hand fighting raged on all sides as the French lashed out with bayonets in desperate counterattacks.

A French army source said tersely, "There is close combat everywhere."

The thrust from the southwest took an entirely new direction toward the underground command post of the garrison's commander, Brig. Gen. Christian de Castries.

By French admission at noon, the rebels were only 600 yards from the heart of the fortress and little more than 100 feet from the outer barricades.

There apparently were not witnesses to the accident. However, one woman in a nearby house said she heard a very loud crash, looked out the window to see the two cars "up in the air."

Deputy Sheriff Carl White, first on the scene, reported that there were no skid marks on the pavement. Also, he said that no one told of hearing any screeching of brakes. There are stop signs on Route 104, meaning 22 has the right of way.

Lutheran Brotherhood Honors Diamond Jubilee Group Here

Trinity Lutheran Brotherhood sponsored its 11th Annual Diamond Jubilee Thursday night to honor those members of the congregation who have attained the age of 75 or more.

The evening's celebration opened with prayer by intern Donald Kearns, followed by joint singing of the table prayer. A banquet dinner was then served to about 275 guests.

After the dinner, Harry Barthelmas, Jr., President of the Brotherhood, led the group in giving thanks to all who helped prepare the celebration. He then turned the program over to the Rev. G. L. Troutman, toastmaster for the evening.

After giving a brief history of the Diamond Jubilee, the Rev. Mr. Troutman called upon George C. Griffith to offer a toast to the honored guests. In addition to a toast for the honored guests, Griffith also offered a toast to the Rev. and Mrs. Troutman for the capable leadership they have given the parish during the past quarter-century.

IN CLOSING his remarks, Griffith offered a toast to Mayor Maynard Sensesbrenner of Columbus, who was present as guest speaker. He was later introduced by the Rev. Mr. Troutman.

Mayor Sensesbrenner expressed his thanks to God and to the people of Circleville, especially to those in the Diamond Jubilee group, who helped train him and prepare him for the position he holds today. He pointed out that man's work in building the kingdom of God is never done and that, regardless of age, we can still "take hold of the hand of another and help them over the rough places in life."

During the course of his address, the Mayor referred to two particular "diamonds" in his life, his mother and father. He drew upon several clippings and notations which his father had preserved during his life-time.

The Mayor said the Rev. Mr. Troutman has followed in the footsteps of Dr. Troutman in preaching the pure gospel to the people of Circleville, and he wished God's blessing upon the Troutman family, as they prepare to leave the community.

Following the mayor's speech, the Rev. Mr. Troutman presented the annual awards of recognition to members of the Diamond Jubilee group.

The award to the oldest woman member of the congregation went to Mrs. Mary Schleyer, who is 94. The award was accepted in behalf of Mrs. Schleyer by her daughter, Mrs. John Bell.

The award for the oldest man of the congregation went to Wesley Justice, who is 88.

AMONG THE 57 honored guests present, there were 20 over 80 years of age, 9 over 85, 4 over 87

Backstage At Circus With Boyle Provides Some Unusual Stories

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Paul Horompo may not be the mightiest midget in history, but he is perhaps the only one who ever whipped a tiger single handed.

Paul, a slender 59-year-old miniature clown with the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus, scored his one-blow knock-out over the tiger in Madison Square Garden in 1938. The battle since has become a legend.

The tiger escaped from her cage and the first person she met was Horompo, who was dressed as one of Snow White's seven dwarfs and carried a wooden pickax on his shoulder. Paul, who is very chivalrous, instinctively stepped aside to let her pass as he would for any lady, tiger or not.

But the tiger halted, and opened the red furnace of her mouth. It looked like Paul would end his career as a tiger tiddit. The tiger had every advantage of weight, height, reach, strength, speed and age. Paul stood only a little higher than her armpits. It looked like one of the garden's poorest mismatches.

"It happened so quick I didn't have time to think of all that," Paul recalled. "Tell you the truth, if she had gone on by me, I don't think I would have bothered her at all."

"But she stopped, looked me over, sneered and started snarling."

"I hated to do it, but I felt I just had to hit her. So I swung my wooden ax and caught her square on the nose. No, I wasn't afraid. I was mad."

"I guess I must have hit a nerve and stunned her. She made a funny noise, and fell on her stomach with a surprised look. I was a little surprised, too."

"I didn't have to hit her again. Some handlers came up with nets and chains. She was so dazed she could hardly wobble back to her cage."

The incident left no lasting ill will on either side.

"She never seemed to bear any grudge afterward," said Paul. "It happened so fast I don't think she even remembered who hit her."

Two ASPCA agents watch every performance of the circus to see that none of its 600 animals are abused.

Raymond Mulligan, who has had this job for a quarter century, says the circus cooperates fully with the society and dismisses grooms or handlers who mistreat animals.

Of all the thousands of animals over which he has watched, Mulligan's favorite is Harry, the world's only elephant herding horse. He is the mount of Arky Scott, superintendent of the 27 circus elephants. Mulligan says:

"Elephants sometimes get to quarreling and fighting among themselves, and most horses are afraid to go near them."

"But not Harry. He's been here 25 years and so have I. Harry used to be a bareback horse, one of the steadiest they ever had. But now all he does is keep peace among the elephants."

"If they start fighting, he goes right in among them and breaks it up. And if they came at him, he doesn't back off. He gives them a nip. He'll really bite them if they don't behave."

"Harry has his own boxstall right by the elephants where he can keep an eye on them. His real name is Harold, and you know what he likes even better than sugar? Peanut butter and jelly sandwiches."

"But don't get the idea he's a sissy. Harry's all horse and the elephants know who's boss."

Mulligan has more respect for Harry than some human elephant handlers.

"The trouble we sometimes run into with elephant handlers," he said mildly, "is that they get an inferiority complex. They'd like to be wild animal trainers, but know they aren't up to it."

"So they sometimes get rid of their frustration by punching the biggest thing they can find—which is an elephant."

But nobody picks on an elephant twice when Mulligan's there.

Execution Facing Youthful Slayer

DOYLESTOWN, Pa. (AP)—George L. Capps, a 22-year-old Army veteran, was convicted of first-degree murder—with a death penalty recommendation—last night in the slaying of a teen-age neighbor girl.

A jury of nine men and three women deliberated less than two hours before returning the verdict. Capps had admitted shooting 15-year-old Marta Gibbons through the head but maintained he was intoxicated and temporarily insane.

The girl's frozen and partially clad body was found by the edge of a lake several miles from her home in the new community of Levittown last Jan. 25.

Capps testified he and the girl had been intimate in the rear of his automobile, with her consent. He said they later argued and he shot her. The state contended he acted in fear she would tell his wife, who was expecting a baby at the time.

Booties Help Recover Purse

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (AP)—For luck, cab driver Joseph Mutserallo has a pair of baby booties dangling from the rear-view mirror of his cab.

The booties brought luck to Mrs. Marie Schanche of Brooklyn, who left her purse in the taxi. The purse contained a bankbook, $56 in cash and her airline return ticket to New York.

While telling police of her loss she remembered the booties. A check of downtown cab stands located Mutserallo's taxi. The purse was on the floor.

Singer Denies Special Favors

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Singer Eddie Fisher, one of several entertainment and sports figures whose Army careers are being investigated by a House subcommittee, said he sought no special favors or assignments during his two years in service.

"I did everything in camp that every other guy in basic did," said Eddie at an alumni function at a Philadelphia high school which he once attended.

The House Armed Services subcommittee is looking into charges that some athletes and entertainers were coddled while in the Army.

Fisher said he handled singing chores and entertained troops here and in Korea and Germany while in uniform. "I was ordered to," he added.

Glass Makers Relying Upon Building, Autos

Bright Sparkle Seen In Future For Industry With Varied Products

By SAM DAWSON
TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—Glass companies with the right customers sparkle today in the light of profit.

Right customers: Those building homes and offices with the modern accent on lots of glass, and those whose auto production lines roll out more transparent cars every year.

Glass companies with these customers report better earnings than a year ago.

And even the glass companies whose customers just now are sitting on their ordering hands — the appliance people, the car makers who aren't making many cars, and the furnishings and industrial concerns who aren't buying quite as many containers — say they can see a gleam in the eye of the future: More homes, more tumblers, more vases, more bottles for more people, young and old.

Nor is it entirely a brittle business. Some companies turn their materials into fibers to make textiles and pipe wrappings, or auto bodies and fishing rods.

In this field, Owens-Corning Fiberglas reports first quarter sales and net income ahead of last year — with a big assist from the end of excess profits taxes, which more than erased a rise in operating costs.

But sales of its products mirror the ups and downs of today's economy as a whole. Among its lines are insulation materials. Sales to appliance makers and ship builders are off, because production in these lines is down.

Its sales are higher to the still booming construction industry and to makers of decorative fabrics.

And sales of Fiberglas-plastic reinforcements are up. From these are molded such things as Chevrolet sports cars bodies, airplane body parts, boat hulls, golf clubs, skis, bows and arrows.

Late starters, but speedy, are Fiberglas insect screening and acoustical tile.

The Dickey Mfg. Co. here has been making Fiberglas - plastic awnings for just one year but says dollar volume already tops that of its long-established custom canvas awnings. On an industry basis, however, the plastic awnings run far behind the metal awnings which now hold a lion's share of the nation's 150 million dollar a year awning sales business.

Glass Fibers Inc., which makes yarns for textiles, also reports higher net profits this year.

The Fiber Glass Division of Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass Co. is young and prospering. But LOF itself is able to report increased profits this year largely because it makes window glass for the lusty construction industry and because it has General Motors as a customer for windshields.

On the other hand, Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co., whose customers aren't as busy this year as last, reports sales down 13 per cent and net profits off 25 per cent. But it says orders picked up in March and the second quarter should equal last year's.

Owens-Illinois Glass Co., which does most of its business in containers, estimates sales this year will be off only one per cent from last year.

'Con' Game Costs Woman $2,000

BOISE, Idaho (AP)—It cost an elderly Boise woman $2,000 yesterday to learn how to play a well-known confidence game.

The woman, who asked her name not be used, told police she was stopped on the street by another lady, who explained she had a lot of money and wanted to know a safe place to put it.

Just then, another woman passed by. She said she had just found a wad of currency, and she promised that each of the other two could have $1,000 of it if they would only loan her some cash for a few hours.

The victim, who is 71, drew $2,000 from her bank and turned it over. That was the last she's seen of the other two.

Saxbe Returns To His Duties In Assembly

Defeated Senatorial Candidate Trying Now To Catch Up On Work

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The loser in the hottest primary election race last Tuesday is about to catch up on the legislative work he put off to campaign for senator.

Ohio House Speaker William Saxbe, 37, Champaign County representative, called a meeting for next Friday of the Public Utilities Study Committee which he heads. His fourth term as legislator runs through this year.

The committee, a branch of the Legislative Service Commission, will look into the formula used by Ohio in setting gas and electric rates. The subject came in for considerable wrangling during the 100th General Assembly without solution. Ohio's complicated formula has been termed outmoded.

Saxbe also has a new job in the Ohio National Guard. He has been named intelligence officer for the 37th Division, a lieutenant colonel. Saxbe served as a bomber pilot in World War II.

The rest of his time will be devoted to the private practice of law and his various activities in Mechanicsburg. He gave no inclination of quitting politics and said he "had fun" campaigning, mostly by plane.

Saxbe gained about five pounds during his strenuous campaign and his wife, Dolly, about eight pounds. His successful opponent for the republican senatorial nomination, 20 years Saxbe's senior, maintained his 200-pound weight but admitted it was a tough fight.

And Rep. George H. Bender of Cleveland looked forward to an even harder campaign against his fellow townsman, Thomas A. Burke, 55.

Burke received the Democratic nomination for U. S. senator without contest. He is serving by interim appointment in the seat of the late GOP Sen. Robert A. Taft, who died last July 31.

The Bender-Burke bout is for election next Nov. 2 for the last two years of Taft's six-year term. For the 57-year-old Bender, campaigning is almost a way of life. He has been in Ohio politics for 34 years and now is in his seventh term as congressman.

He plans to tour all 88 counties again before the general election, calling attention to his support of President Eisenhower's program. He has termed Burke a "New Dealer." Bender said that during the campaign against Burke he will discuss "the performance of my party and his party" in particular.

Bender also can be expected to cite Burke's opposition to the constitutional amendment by Sen. John W. Bricker (R-Ohio) to limit presidential executive agreements. The long-debated proposal lost in the Senate without coming to a vote in the House.

Bender travels mainly by automobile in his campaigns. He used trains and planes to "commute" between Washington and Ohio before the primary and to keep in touch with his anti-racketeering sub-committee that held hearings in Minneapolis, Minn., and has investigators in this state.

A stickler for neatness, Bender often changed detachable collars a half dozen times a day on campaign junkets. But after a trying day he would sink down in the seat of his car on the way home and sigh, "Oh dear."

Cook School Chief Advises Husbands

Husbands often have the idea that, given a free hand in the kitchen, they could surpass the "Mrs." in culinary skills.

There's one husband who knows better—J. M. Parker, manager of the cooking school scheduled for Memorial Hall in Circleville for three days, starting next Tuesday.

"Think twice," Parker advises the husbands, "before you try to take over your wife's job as chief cook. It's not easy. After two years as manager of a cooking school, I'm willing to admit that most women can out-cook the men, including myself, any day of the week."

Parker hastened to explain that in spite of his unusual position as manager of the Gasco Food Institute the job doesn't make too many demands in the cooking line. He leaves the difficult dishes up to Foods Lecturer Mildred Dunn.

When he is home in Columbus, he leaves cooking tasks strictly to his wife and two daughters. Admission to the Gasco Food Institute will be free. The public is invited. Door prizes will be given each evening.

Escapees Nurse Buckshot Wounds

HAGERSTOWN, Md. (AP)—Seven inmates of the Maryland State Reformatory for Males nursed buckshot wounds today while officials probed their attempted escape from the institution, where two riots occurred last fall.

The seven were among 10 young prisoners who scaled a 20-foot steel wire fence surrounding a recreation yard last night only to be stopped by a spray of buckshot from seven guards.

Supt. Clement J. Ferling said those hit suffered minor flesh wounds. Three others escaped injury.

Cement Mixer Riding Halted

WATERTOWN, N. Y. (AP)—Police broke up this "carnival" concession in a hurry.

Ten boys took over a cement mixer in the rear of a building supply house and took turns at riding inside the barrel and cranking. The makeshift "ride" accommodated two customers at a time.

Man, 64, Drowns

VAN WERT (AP)—Paulding County Coroner G. L. Doster says Albert L. Heistan, 64, apparently stumbled into a ditch and drowned. Heistan's body was found yesterday.

Plow Kills Farmer

DELAWARE (AP)—Dovner Clark, 3, was killed yesterday when plows on the tractor he was driving flew up and pinned him against the steering wheel.

There are now six recognized varieties of turkeys in the United States — Bronze, Narragansett, White Holland, Bourbon Red, Black and Slate.

By James Marlow
Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP)—The St. Lawrence River, which for much of its length separates the United States and Canada, will now be turned into a away for ships to travel between the Great Lakes and the Atlantic Ocean.

Until this year Congress always blocked the idea although every president since World War I, including President Eisenhower, was for it. The Senate approved it in January and the House yesterday.

That does it, except for some minor differences between House and Senate versions expected to be worked out without controversy. The work which can begin now will take six years and cost the United States about 105 million dollars. It will cost Canada more. But it will be a joint task undertaken by the two countries.

It's expected to pay for itself in 50 years through tolls collected from the ships passing through. What has to be done: deepening the river in some places and building some canals and locks.

The good expected from it: cutting 1,000 miles off the open sea route to Western Europe; giving the United States just that much more transportation in case of war. The Great Lakes shipyards could build ocean-going ships, at least up to the size of destroyers. And the Middle West will have a direct water route to the sea, meaning cheaper freight rates.

The problem can be described this way:

From Duluth, Minn. — through the Great Lakes and their connecting canals and down the St. Lawrence River to the Gulf of St. Lawrence, which opens into the ocean—there is a 2,300-mile waterway.

But because in some places the river is not deep enough — only 14 feet — there is a 114-mile bottleneck in the river above Montreal.

The solution: deepen the river where needed to 27 feet and add the necessary locks and canals. Then the Great Lakes fleet, with capacity 20 times greater than the canals which now alone can navigate the 14-foot depths, can go from lakes to gulf. Ocean-going ships can get through to the lakes.

The American work, covering perhaps 11 miles altogether, will be in the International Rapids and the Thousand Islands sections. This will all be in that portion of the St. Lawrence which separates Canada from the United States. Canada will do its share of the job in its own part of the river.

The United States will set up a federal corporation, headed by an administrator and a five-man advisory board appointed by the President with Senate approval—to look after United States interests and work out agreements with Canada on the tolls.

In the meantime the State of New York and the province of Ontario plan to build power dams with a capacity of 12,000,000,000 kilowatt hours of electricity, to be divided equally between New York and Ontario.

The total cost of that program will be 600 millions. New York may distribute its share of the power as far east as Maine.

17 Adults Given Certificates In Typing Course

City Schools Superintendent George Hartman announced Friday that 17 members of the adult education classes in beginner typing were recently given certificates upon completion of their training.

The classes, established chiefly through Hartman's efforts, drew wide commendation here from spokesmen for commerce and industry. It was pointed out such training, available to both city and rural residents, will prove especially valuable in any continued growth of local business.

There were two classes in typing each Wednesday evening for a period of 20 weeks. These sessions, initiated this year, have been a very definite success, according to all those concerned.

Course of instruction included an introduction to the keyboard, key board skill development, building typing speed, typing business letters, tabulation procedure, use of the mimeograph duplicator machine, an introduction to the operation of the electric typewriter, and miscellaneous typing techniques.

MEMBERS RECEIVING certificates were: Mrs. Noble Barr, Frances Barth, Evelyn Carter, Pauline Clifton, Margaret Cook, Gwendolyn Dean, Maxine Dowler, Eloise Dunkel, Dorothy Gregory, Mrs. Alonzo Hill, Elizabeth Hill, Mary Kline Hoffman, Kenneth Luna, Thelma Pryor, Hazel Steele, Mary Turner, Fern Ziegler.

Donald Farrell of the high school commercial department was the instructor.

HEADS UP IN DALLAS

RETAIL MERCHANTS of Dallas, Texas, have an idea in a nutshell. Nobody is worried about the health of retail business in that booming metropolis.

In essence businessmen simply want to know whether a storekeeper will do better if he adds another story to his downtown building—or if he opens a new store somewhere in the suburbs. They'll find out, perhaps, from a special study being completed in Dallas by the U. S. Census Bureau. It is really a study of the economics of decentralization.

The Dallas retailers did not put their heads in the sand. Instead they dug into their own pockets to add more funds to the resources of the federal agency's task force. At the moment it looks as if downtown Dallas is holding its own. The census chief at work in Dallas hints that the rush to the suburbs may be slowing up, and the city's mercantile core may be in no danger.

And in truth there are some big advantages in mid-city business locations. No matter what the attractions of a store in a suburb, its appeal may not impress housewives who live beyond the opposite edge of the city. And in some instances it has been found there is more overhead expense in several satellite stores than in one big store.

But whatever the facts in Dallas, a full knowledge of them is sure to benefit the whole community in the long run.

FBI NEXT TARGET?

IT WOULD BE a strange development if it were to develop that Russian spies did not attempt to invade the field of the H-bomb in the U. S. Such an oversight on the part of the gremlins from the Kremlin could not be explained in any rational manner.

The twistings and turnings and squirmings of the leftwingers and their radio and journalistic mouthpieces in the wake of the latest developments in Washington would be ludicrous if the country were in the mood to be amused by their pro-Russian leanings.

Of course, these new disclosures will not throw anti-anticommunists off the track permanently. It had been frequently predicted by some of the better Washington reporters that the next target of their never-ending smear campaign would be J. Edgar Hoover and the FBI. The part played by the FBI in these new revelations should be enough to send the pinko rats into a rage.

But the public should be on guard against this predicted maneuver, if and when it appears. When a "freedom lover," whether in print or on the air, starts sniping at the FBI, you can be sure he is doing the Kremlin's work in the United States.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Apparently the Russians have their troubles too. Comrades P. Plotnikov and A. Lipatov wrote in "Pravda":

"Comrade Stalin-teachers that it is necessary: 'To remember and never forget that as long as there is capitalist encirclement there will be saboteurs, wreckers, spies and terrorists sent to the Soviet Union's home front by intelligence agencies of foreign states, to remember this and to wage a struggle against comrades who underestimate the importance of the fact of capitalist encirclement, who underestimate the forces and significance of sabotage.'"

The reason for all this is that somebody is stealing documents. Plotnikov and A. Lipatov warn against the spies and saboteurs who steal documents and give them to Americans. To quote them further:

"With these aims, the imperialists expend tremendous sums on intensifying subversive activity in the U.S.S.R. and the people's democracies. As is known, the American government officially allocated $100,000,000 in 1951 to finance the operations of spies, saboteurs and wreckers in the U.S.S.R. and the people's democracies."

The Russians do not have Congressional committees and there is nobody like Joe McCarthy around to arouse the workers and peasants, but the Russians do arouse the populace to spy on the spies.

This is not a new approach to the subject because even in old Czarist days, many people spied on their neighbors and were well rewarded and in the early Bolshevik days, children were encouraged to spy on the bourgeois or kulak parents. But this passage of Plotnikov and Lipatov does sound like something that one of us of the anti-Communist movement might have written:

"Each Soviet patriot—worker, collective farmer, member of the intelligentsia—considers it his duty, if he sees an enemy, to help the workers of state security to catch that enemy. Thanks to the vigilance of Soviet patriots in the years of the great patriotic war and in the postwar period, many spies, saboteurs and murderers who made their way into our country were exposed and disarmed."

It appears that G. L. Zaslavsky, assistant chief of the Geology Ministry's department of records of reserves, which is a big name for stockpiling, took home a wad of records and permitted them to pass through his hands. No apparatus is named similar to the Fuchs-Rosenberg operation at Los Alamos or the Rosenberg operation at Fort Monmouth, but the nation is warned about security risks.

Look at what they say about the scientists:

"Some comrades who are engaged in scientific research are thoughtless in utilizing secret information and try to show off with it in their writings, thereby harming the cause of preservation of state secrets. That is what N. G. Kazhlayev, formerly assistant chief of a chief administration of the Ministry of the Oil Industry, did. He used secret data without the knowledge of the ministry officials and published them in his dissertation."

Symptoms of Ulcers

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

MEN and women suffer from completely different symptoms when they have ulcers.

In men, the pain of an ulcer is quite typical in most instances. It is usually a severe gnawing pain below the ribs that is relieved following eating and then recurs an hour or two following the food intake. The pain is often helped by taking baking soda or by eating food.

Ulcers in Women

It is interesting to note that women do not suffer the same type of symptoms as men when they have ulcer difficulties.

In many instances, women have odd complaints which do not seem in any way to be those of an ulcer. However, a diagnosis of ulcer is finally made after extensive X-rays have been taken. In many instances, other nervous symptoms cloud over the ulcer symptoms to a great degree.

The severity of a woman's ulcer often is not enough to warrant surgery. However, extremely nervous women may have ruptured or severely bleeding ulcers in some few instances.

In most cases, women respond well enough to treatment, so that they do not suffer any future difficulty. Their symptoms can usually be controlled easily by diet and the new ulcer medicines given under the direction of the family physician.

Many times, women with ulcers are in need of psychiatric help in straightening out some emotional problem. When these emotional upsets are relieved, the ulcers usually do not recur.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Mr. R. F.: What causes one's teeth to wear away? I am careful to keep my teeth in very excellent condition.

Answer: It is due to a disturbance known as dental erosion. It is believed that some chemical process causes a gradual softening of the surfaces of the teeth. The mechanical force of eating causes a further deterioration of the teeth. Sometimes too vigorous or too frequent brushings may be at fault.

If the teeth are eroding to a great extent, crowns or caps may have to be put over them.

CHAPTER THIRTY

MISS PRYOR eased herself down on her bed with a groan. "I hand it to you, Taber. I give you the brass star with palms and stuff. You've got grit. I couldn't have done it—not my own sister. I suppose old Grampus was muddling around, snorting through his mask, and Baird yelling, and all the while P.S. was showing them where to cut and how to splice the nerves and reminding them to get the sponges out and fibrin and suifa in and all that?"

"It was that way at first. Then they saw that he knew more than all five of them—so he finished—and Dr. Baird put on the cast and Johnny gave the transfusion—"

"Who's Johnny? The big guy who rode in on the ambulance?"

"Yes, that's Johnny. He lives across the road. He'll marry Ravel ultimately—I hope. She's terribly in love with him—that's why she did such a mad thing, trying to make an untrained horse jump a gate."

"Lover's quarrel, eh? You never know. Some of them drink varnish remover and some eat a whole bottle of pills—this is the first one we ever had who used a horse. Sorry, Taber—I forgot I was talking about your family. You can take it, anyway. Aren't you slightly green and sickish inside, with rockets going off in your stomach?"

"No, I'm all right." But she wasn't. She wanted to cry, she wanted to break down and sob and howl, but grief needed a shoulder, and there were too many people that she had to sustain and encourage.

Downstairs in that quiet room was Gale, her face chalk-white and her hands still uncertain, and outside tramping up and down corridors, John-Mark, with such a woe-begone aspect that the young probationers who passed him sighed.

The grapevine was working and he was believed to be a tormented lover waiting for his adored one to come out of the ether and give him a wan smile. Theima was somewhere, parked on a bench, having ridden in with Gale in the car and shrewdly provided herself with two corn pones and a cold sweet potato.

Now, Julia was thinking numbly, she would have to change and go down and take Gale out somewhere to supper, and then persuade John-Mark to take Gale and Theima home. There was nothing more any of them could do. All that could be done for Ravel had been finished, and Pete Marshall had done it. Her shattered vertebrae were aligned and anchored, her nerves cleverly repaired. Pete had come out of the operating room drained and sweat-soaked, but as the stretcher went into the elevator he had squeezed Julia's shoulder in a hard grip and given her a triumphant grin.

"What you need," stated Pryor maternally, "is to sleep around the clock. Put on some more rouge, for heaven's sake."

"It's the back of my neck," Julia said. "It's tied in a hard knot."

GALE was sitting in a corner of the dim room, looking small and wan and pitiful.

"I think I won't go down, Dooley," she whispered. "She isn't out from under yet, and I want to be here."

"She'll be quite all right," insisted the prim Reg.N., who was on special. "You should go and get some coffee at least, Mrs. Taber. And then you should go home and get a good night's sleep."

"Oh, I couldn't! I don't think I could swallow. You go, Dooley. John-Mark must be still around somewhere. Go and find John-Mark."

She did not want to find John-Mark. She did not want to meet his eyes, share with him again the burden of responsibility for Ravel's wild, tragic escape. He had been heavy with remorse all the way into town. For some reason he had seemed to think that she should feel guilty too. Perhaps some of the guilt was hers.

But I wasn't sure — I didn't know—. She had told herself over and over. She had had to know, she had had to be sure, she had had to put John-Mark out of her life, out of her dreams. She went down the iron stairs, and her feet beat time to the little prayer she was saying inside herself: "Please love her, Johnny! She needs you so."

She would get a cup of coffee and then go back to stay with Gale till Ravel was conscious again. Then perhaps she could persuade them all to go home. On the bench in the drafty corridor, Theima was sound asleep, but John-Mark was nowhere around. She could get a cup of coffee in the drug store, Julia decided. She went down a few steps and around a bend in the lower hall, and there was Pete Marshall, in his old raincoat, leaning against the wall.

"Come along," he said again, as he had last night.

"Where?" Julia asked thinly.

"Out. For a steak and a breath of air. Before you collapse on us."

"I'm all right. You—you were wonderful, doctor."

"You were pretty good yourself. There was a minute or two," he went on as he opened the outer door for her, "when I saw that dorsal damage and old Baird began to fumble, that I wasn't feeling too optimistic. But now I think we did a pretty job of it, and I want to eat."

The little car was damp with dew, the leather cushions were chilly.

"I appreciated it—you coming away out there," Julia began. "It was all so ghastly because it was mostly my fault. We were talking and Ravel overheard us."

"You called me, didn't you?" he demanded. "There was panic in your voice. And you called me Pete."

"Did I? I was excited."

"People who like me call me"

Pete. And people I like. Nobody else."

"You may as well know, she heard us talking—John-Mark and I—"

"I know what he said," he interrupted. "What I want to know is what you said."

There was a silence, lasting two blocks. "Here's a good place," Pete snatched the car into the curb, dragged on the brake. "You haven't told me what you said. He said he was in love with you."

"I said—" her throat was very tight and dry—"I said... that I was sorry... but Ravel never heard what I said."

He did not move to get out of the car. He looked straight ahead, and his profile showed, grave and contained, in the flickering neon light of the doorway before them. His voice came gravelly too, from somewhere far away, it seemed, from some deep place in him where no one had ever been admitted before.

"Dooley, I love you," he said. "I love you like the devil, and you may as well know it."

She drew a long shivering breath. "Yes," she said faintly. He whirled on her. "Yes, what?"

"Yes, I know."

"So you know, do you? I suppose you've known for a long time. Even before I found it out myself."

"No—not a long time. Just—today. I knew because you wouldn't get out of my mind. Because wherever I turned—there you were. There was John-Mark—his house all fixed up new and lovely—and I told him I was sorry, because you wouldn't leave me alone."

"Dooley, don't be a fool. Don't let me talk you into it! Life won't be easy for any woman who goes along with me. There's a way I have to go—I meant to go alone, it's right for me to go alone, not to drag someone along—it wouldn't be right. It wouldn't be fair."

"I worked with you today," she said softly. "You came when I called you. Wouldn't you always come when I called, Pete? I think you would."

"Yes, I'd come," he said, his lips against her hair. "Dooley—look at me! It's all right? It's all right—you and me?"

"I think it will always be all right." She felt light and confident now. It was all clear—it had been Pete all along, the dream had never died. All her silly muddling and meddling seemed far away and gone forever because Pete was kissing her hair, and then her cheek and her lips.

"People are looking at us," she murmured after a little.

"I'm hungry," she said, a long time later.

Pete snorted. "Good Lord! Going practical on me already. All right. Come along."

Always he would say, "Come along."

Always, she knew she would follow.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

news behind the news

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower's record in the public versus private power controversy was reviewed realistically by the nation's top utility experts here in recent days. The leaders of the so-called "power trust" staged their annual meeting in connection with the national convention of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, with which most of them are affiliated.

It may surprise the professional, political agitators of this issue, but the private operators were not entirely satisfied with the White House achievements. Ike has not tried, as Truman liberals forecast, to hand over the nation's natural resources to them.

He has made no attempt to withdraw the government from this field, or to sell TVA, Bonneville, Grand Coulee and Central Valley to the private interests. He has not opened the door to "selfish exploitation."

COMPLAINTS—It's a matter of fact, the private utilitarians voiced a few complaints against Ike. Although he described TVA as

"creeping socialism," the House killed amendments forcing TVA to pay taxes and liberalizing its contracts for sale of juice by cities in its area. Eisenhower made no attempt to round up Republican votes for the restrictions.

Through the Federal Power Commission, he handed the St. Lawrence project to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's New York State Power Authority. He has thrown his influence behind Dewey's demand for the right to develop Niagara River, as against the firm bid of five private companies. And utility men regard State intervention as only slightly less distasteful than federal promotion.

Although Secretary Douglas McKay has killed the Truman-Chapman plan for federal development of Hell's Canyon, FPC has dragged out hearings on the Idaho Power Company's petition interminably. It looks now as if any decision may be deferred until after the November elections.

In these specific contests, Ike has not shown himself too friendly to private power. He had to give thought to such political considerations as the need to reelect Dewey and a Republican Congress next fall.

CHECKMATE—Being politico-economic realists, however, few utility bigwigs expected Ike to sabotage the vast public power grid built up through Roosevelt-Truman years. No utility corporation is in the market for existing federal systems, which are tied to such collateral operations as flood control, irrigation, navigation and other activities unsuited to private management.

In their summary, they credit the White House, Congress and the courts with having checkmated the Roosevelt-Truman-Ickes program of federalizing almost all the generating and distributing facilities now in private hands. Had that trend been continued for another four or eight years under a Democratic regime, they believe that Washington would have obtained a near-monopoly in this field.

Eisenhower, in short, has reversed the march of the public power parade.

WEAPON—Equally important, they feel that a Stevenson in the White House would have insisted on exclusive government development of atomic power. All the traditional public power factions—Truman liberals and former aides, the CIO, the National Farmers' Union—demand that Uncle Sam retain ownership and control of nuclear energy materials and facilities for commercial utilization.

Were this view to prevail, the United States would possess a weapon for destroying the private industry such as Roosevelt, Truman and Ickes never dreamed of in their most balmy and belligerent days. With exclusive control of all sources of nuclear and solar energy, Washington would have enjoyed life-and-death power over all industry, not merely the private utilities.

Under measures now pending before Congress, however, these on-the-horizon forces will be developed and marketed under private auspices, with strict government supervision and regulations for safeguarding national defense needs.

Elijah Challenges Baal Worship

JEHOVAH'S PHOPHET DEALS PAGANISM A MORTAL BLOW.

Scripture—I Kings 17:1-19:18.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
ELIJAH, THE TISHBITE, is the hero of one of the most thrilling episodes of the Old Testament. The lesson is long, so we will have room only to mention briefly the things that occurred before the great drama took place on the mountaintop.

King Ahab had succeeded his father, Omri, as king of Israel, and he proved one of the worst kings of all Israel's rulers. He had a wicked wife, named Jezebel, whose name even today implies that a woman to whom it is applied is evil.

Elijah faced the king and told him, "As the Lord God of Israel liveth, before whom I stand, there shall not be dew nor rain these years, but according to my word." And so it was, the earth dried, the brooks were empty of water and not even dew fell to moisten plants. There was a great famine in the land.

However, God told Elijah to hide himself by the brook Cherith and he would send ravens to feed him. Elijah obeyed and the ravens did feed him, bringing meat and bread, and he drank from the Elijah persisted in showing himself to Ahab, however, and when he met the king the monarch said: "Art thou he that troubleth Israel?" Elijah's answer was, "I have not troubled Israel, but thou, and thy father's house, in that ye have forsaken the command of the Lord, and thou hast followed Baalim."

Then Elijah ordered the king to call all the people together on Mt. Carmel, which he did, and Elijah asked the people, "How long halt ye between two opinions? If the Lord be God, follow Him, but if Baal, then follow him," but the people answered never a word.

Then Elijah told the 400 prophets of Baal to build an altar, to slaughter a bullock, cut it up, arrange wood on the altar, place the bullock upon it, but light no fire, but call upon Baal to send fire to burn the sacrifice.

They did as he said, and for hours they called upon Baal to send the fire, even, in their desperation, cutting themselves with knives and lancets to induce their deity, god to answer their supplications.

Elijah mocked them, and built brook until it dried up. Then God told him to go to the town of Zarephath and a widow would give him food.

When Elijah appeared at the widow's home and asked for a drink of water and some bread, she said she had only a handful of meal and a little oil to feed her son and herself, and then they would die, but Elijah told her that if she would make a little cake for him the Lord had said that the meal "shall not waste, neither shall the oil fail, until the day that the Lord sendeth rain upon the earth."

So Elijah lived with the widow and her son and they were fed, but the son was taken ill and "there was no breath left in him." His mother upbraided Elijah, accusing him of being the cause of the boy's death. Elijah took the child to his own room, laid him upon the bed, stretched himself upon the child three times and prayed that he might live, and the boy recovered.

After three years of drought the Lord told Elijah to show himself to Ahab. Now Obadiah was governor of the king's house, and a devout man, and the king had told him to go into the land and see if there was any water left in any fountain or brook so that the horses and mules might be saved. Obadiah had hidden in caves 100 of the Lord's prophets who would have been killed by Jezebel. Meeting the prophet Elijah, Obadiah was terrified when the prophet told him that he must see the king. He thought Ahab would kill him because the king had sent everywhere to find and slay Elijah but had not found him.

a like altar on the peak of Mt. Carmel, built a trench about it, laid wood upon it, the bullock upon the wood, poured water over the meat and the wood three times, filling the trench also with water.

Elijah then prayed most earnestly to the God of Abraham, Isaac and Israel, saying: "Hear me, O Lord, hear me, that this people may know that Thou art the Lord God, and that Thou hast turned their heart back again."

"Then the fire of the Lord fell, and consumed the burnt sacrifice, and the wood, and licked up the water that was in the trench." When the people saw this they fell on their faces and said, "The Lord, He is the God; the Lord, He is the God!"

Then Elijah called upon the people to kill all the prophets of Baal, which they did. "Elijah said to Ahab, get thee up, eat and drink, for there is a sound of abundance of rain."

When Jezebel, the queen, was told she was so furious she vowed she would have Elijah killed, so again he fled into the wilderness, sat down under a juniper tree and pleaded, "O Lord, take away my life; for I am not better than my fathers."

However, he did not die then. An angel of the Lord fed him for the Lord had other missions for him to fulfill.

Pictures of idols that have been worshiped in various times would interest children in this lesson. Are there any idol worshippers in our own communities? What about those who make money their god? or those who make a fetish of power seeking? These, too, might be called idol worship.

HERE'S BASEBALL

How to Play Third Base

(This is the second of seven articles in which former major league stars tell how to play the game.)

By HAROLD (PIE) TRAYNOR
(Written for AP Newsfeatures)

A third baseman must be quick on his feet and possess a strong arm. He must have cat in him because he is the closest infielder to the batter. He must be ready for bunts at all times.

A good tip would be to watch Billy Cox of Brooklyn next time he plays third base. I have seen him make some of the greatest plays any third baseman ever made. He has the natural ability and uses it by being ready for any situation.

Cox is the best glove man in baseball today. He could be a great shortstop or a great second baseman. He has the hands and the reflexes.

A third baseman should play with his hands on his knees and be balanced.

ON A ALL hit between him and the shortstop he must bring his right leg across his left foot. It's the opposite way on going to his right; bring the left foot over the right foot. Try it sometime and see how easy it is to save a step.

The third baseman should get to learn the opposing hitters. For instance, play deep and closer to the foul line when there's a pull hitter up. If he's a good hitter of the Ralph Kiner type he's less likely to bunt. With most left-handed hitters the third baseman can stray farther from the bag.

However, this is not true of the scatter hitters, fellows like Stan Musial, Gene Woodling and Dale Mitchell who can hit to all fields. Woodling and Mitchell often swing late and hit to the left side of the diamond.

Yogi Berra, when he has two strikes on him, often hits to the left side. All he's trying to do with a two-strike situation is meet the ball.

A third baseman must get in front of hard hit balls. If you can't field a hard hit ball cleanly at least you can block it from going into left field and possibly becoming a two-base hit. These days a two-base hit is the bane of many pitchers. They worry about that man in scoring position.

Always try to get the front runner.

WHEN THE tying or winning run is on third base and it's less than two out you must throw the ball to the plate instead of trying to make the double play. Always try at any cost to keep the opposition from scoring the tying or winning run.

Here are a few situations that a good third baseman must learn to combat:

With men on first and second and

Traynor Relates How Bunt Nearly Switched Series

Pie Traynor, with the Pittsburgh Pirates for 17 years and now rated one of baseball's greatest third basemen, always had deep respect for the bunt as a play to catch the opposition napping.

In today's issue of The Herald, Traynor gives advice to district boys who aspire to play the hot corner sack. And here is his side piece on how important a bunt play can be:

"Position at third base is everything. A bunt to third base decides many ball games. Such a bunt almost cost the Yankees the 1952 World Series.

"The Dodgers had a fine hitter at bat in Roy Campanella. Charley Dressen thought he'd cross up the Yankees with a bunt. He did. Duke Snider had singled on Ed Lopat's second pitch in the fourth inning of the seventh and deciding game in Ebbets Field. Snider moved to second when Jack Robinson beat out a bunt toward the mound.

"Then, with men on first and second base, Lopat got together with his third baseman, Gil McDougald. Mac, as I get it, was supposed to take the bunt, if Campanella bunted. On the next pitch, Campanella bunted halfway between third and home.

"It was such a beautiful bunt that it left doubt in McDougald's mind as to whether he should get the ball or let Lopat get it. Mac never broke for the ball and Lopat, who thought Mac would take the play, was left handcuffed on the mound. Stengel then took Lopat out of the game without a run being scored.

"Luckily, for the Yankees, Alie Reynolds came in and got the side out with the loss of only one run. That run scored on an out-field fly. It could have been a big inning for the Dodgers all because of Campanella's bunt."

Rudy Trbovich, an 18-year-old righthander, pitched a perfect seven-inning baseball game at Steubenville Wednesday to win for East Liverpool High School 5-0.

Smith Seen Winning Tribe Regular Spot

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Al Smith, a shaky fielder but a solid batter, belted a home run last night—giving Cleveland a 3-2 victory over Philadelphia and making it harder for Rudy Regalado to get back in the lineup.

Smith, a second-year man with the Indians, replaced Regalado at third when the rookie injured his right thigh and Manager Al Lopez says he will "admit Smith hasn't done very well in the field."

"But," Lopez adds, "his bat and his base running have been very important to us this trip." The manager, who moved Al Rosen to first base to make a place for Regalado, held that:

"Give Smith a chance to get organized and he'll be an acceptable third baseman." He pointed out Smith had been "sitting around all spring and had practically no work at third base."

The game-winning homer, into the upper tier of the left field pavilion, came in the eighth inning and gave Early Wynn his third victory against a pair of losses.

Bobby Avila scored the other two Indian runs. He doubled in the first inning and, after Wally Westlake sacrificed, scored on Rosen's fly out. With two out in the fifth, Avila bunted safely took second on a pass ball and scored on Westlake's single.

The win gave the Tribe a 7-1 record against eastern teams on their current trip. They have a 9-4 record for the entire trip, with two games to go, against Baltimore.

They are idle today.

Smith's showing makes it almost certain Lopez will not move Rosen back to third, a position where he won the league's most valuable player award last year.

Mile King Unimpressed By His Feat

OXFORD, England (AP)—Roger Bannister, the master miler who crashed the four-minute barrier, drew back into his shell of shyness today while the athletic world acclaimed his feat of the century.

The quiet, 25-year-old medical student shattered the world record with a dazzling 3:59.4 clocking in the blustery cold here last night and thus won the race to the peak of trackdom's Mount Everest, the four-minute mile.

"I think the four-minute mile has been overrated," he said quietly as if trying to justify his feat. "After all it's only a time. The essence of athletics is racing against an opponent rather than a clock."

He said he was tired at the end of the race and that he knew he'd just about make it to the end.

"I think people have been frightened of this four-minute mile," he said. "Now that it's been broken, I'm sure other runners will break it, too."

Although, the slight 157-pounder

Race Halted By Rain Run Again By Stock Cars

A 25 lap feature stock car race, postponed last Sunday, will be run Sunday at Lancaster Speedway. This race, halted by rains last week, will be followed by the usual eliminations leading up to the main feature race.

The Lancaster track has been converted from a quarter mile to a third of a mile making the oval one of the fastest in central Ohio. The turns have been banked to allow for more speed.

Last Sunday, Ossie Osborn, of Columbus, broke the track record with a time of 18:40. An even newer record is expected for the upcoming program, according to the promoter Charlie Macioei.

Competition is open with no limitations. The point system is used. Time trials are at 1:30 p. m. with the first race getting under way at 2:30 p. m.

Lancaster track is located four miles north of that city on Route 33.

was unimpressed by his great effort, he did acknowledge that the 15-mile-an hour wind in the Ilfley Road track might have cost him two seconds.

"I think the 3:56 mile is within reach," he said. But he didn't say he'd be the one to do it.

Incidentally, all four clockers at the end of the mile caught him in identical times, a rarity in itself.

Immediately ahead lies a year of military service for Roger.

Site Needed For 1955 All-Star Tilt

COLUMBUS (AP)—The Ohio High School Football Coaches Assn. is looking for a spot to hold its 1955 North-South football game.

The 1954 all-senior contest is scheduled Aug. 13 at Springfield as the feature of a week-long coaching clinic, but no bids were received last night for the 10th annual game next year.

The bids were thrown open, at the spring meeting of the directors, with the stipulation they must be submitted to Secretary Carl Schroeder of Massillon by June 1.

Cincinnati, Middletown and Dayton were suggested as possible sites, but several of the directors said they favored taking the game back to Canton where the 1953 event drew total receipts of more than $28,000.

George Vlierebome of Zanesville, new president of the association since Massillon's Chuck Mather moved to the University of Kansas, said the 1955 game site would be selected by June 15 to allow the new sponsors to study operations in Springfield. Game sponsors must guarantee the coaches' association $750, or five per cent of the gate receipts.

The coaches also changed slightly the method of picking the all-stars for the annual classic. Under the new plan one player will be picked from each of the eight districts in each sector of the state, and the other 17 on each 25-man squad will be determined by votes from his own area, the other seven districts, membership on the All-Ohio team, and the team's won-lost record.

Temple Tagged As Sparkplug For Redlegs

Short-Hit Expert Tops Team In Batting, Wins Fourth Of Victories

By The Associated Press

Tobacco-chewing Johnny Temple, who aims for first base instead of the fences, is proving the sparkplug of the Cincinnati Redlegs' fight for first division.

Sandwiched into a lineup which breathes power at almost every position, this 24-year-old North Carolinian has parlayed his humpbacked liners over the infield into a .378 batting average, tops on the club.

He has been personally responsible for the winning run in exactly 25 per cent of the Reds' victories this spring.

He drove in the deciding tally again yesterday as Cincinnati shaded the New York Giants 5-4 and moved into second place in the National League with a 12-8 record. The Reds trail the first-place Philadelphia Phillies by half a game.

While Ted Kluszewski, Jim Greengrass, Gus Bell and company aim for outer space, Temple, a graduate from the Texas League, is satisfied with his Texas League singles. Against the Giants he dumped one into right field in the eighth inning that scored pinch runner Nino Escalera from second base for the winning run.

The Brooklyn Dodgers fell before the Chicago Cubs 8-7 in 11 innings and Milwaukee beat Pittsburgh 3-0. The Phillies were rained out at St. Louis.

In the American League the Chicago White Sox stretched their lead to a game and a half over Detroit and Cleveland by edging Washington 5-4. The Indians won their seventh game in eight Eastern starts, 3-2 over Philadelphia, and New York trounced Baltimore 9-0.

Boston and Detroit again lost a decision to the weatherman.

Faulty fielding in left field—a sore point with the Dodgers for two seasons—helped Chicago to its winning run. With Randy Jackson on first in the 11th, Ernie Bank doubled to left. George Shuba couldn't find the handle and Jackson scampered home.

Hal Jeffcoat, an outfielder in previous years, made his first appearance as a pitcher and picked up the victory in relief. He worked eight innings and struck out catcher Rube Walker with the bases loaded in the ninth.

The Braves beat the Pirates behind the five-hit pitching of Lew Burdette, who turned in the first shutout by a Milwaukee pitcher this season. The Braves moved into fifth place.

At Washington the White Sox waited until two were out in the ninth before staging their winning rally. Nellie Fox doubled and rode home on Minnie Minoso's fourth single. Minoso scored after an error and Willard Marshall's single. Harry Dorish, in relief, ran his lifetime margin over the Senators to 14-4.

Early Wynn bested Arnold Portocarrero in a pitching duel at Philadelphia with Al Smith providing the deciding margin with an eighth-inning home run. Vic Power singled home the first Philadelphia run and matched Smith's circuit blast in the bottom of the eighth.

The Orioles, hitless wonders of the American League, managed only one hit—Bobby Young's first-inning single—off Allie Reynolds before the Yankee veteran retired with a cramp in the eighth. The Yanks battered Joe Coleman for four runs in the first inning, with Yogi Berra's homer the big blow.

Sokolsky's These Days

"It must be borne in mind that the enemy may use the slightest loophole, any bit of carelessness, to cause harm and to do his dirty work. Talkativeness, criminal carelessness in safeguarding secret documents, tolerance of instances of moral corruption — the infuriated and cunning enemy tries to utilize everything."

This might be a suggestion to Senator McCarthy, when he resumes his investigations. Are they subversive or just showing off? That is altogether a novel explanation—a scientist likes to write dissertations as a columnist likes to write columns. It is a way of telling the world that he is also among the living. Is showing off a criminal offense? Instead of pleading the Fifth Amendment, a scientist might say: "When I gave away the secrets of the hydrogen bomb, I wasn't subversive; I was only showing off."

I just can't help quoting one more bit of this Plotnikov and Lipatov article. It reads so like here at home:

"We have another enemy besides the enemy's agents—the gullibility of our people. We have developed many gullible and careless people. It is the gullibility and carelessness of our people which constitutes nourishing soil for spies and saboteurs. As long as we have gullible and careless people there will be wrecking. That means that to liquidate sabotage it is necessary to put an end to gullibility and carelessness in our ranks."

They have fellow travelers and innocents, too. But somehow they win all the conferences in spite of all that.

CIRCLEVILLE HIGH

Junior S.O.S., a club of freshman and sophomore girls, sponsored a dance in the social rooms of Circleville High School on April 23. Officers are President, Mary Jo Smith; Vice-President, Carolyn Huffer; Secretary, Connie Wertman; Corresponding Secretary, Sandy McAllister; and Treasurer, Carol Bass.

Approximately 150 persons attended the "Spring Swing" of round and square dancing to the music of Bud Preston's orchestra of Grove City.

Decorations for the dance were crepe paper streamers in many spring colors and spring flowers. The main event of the evening was the announcement of the queen, Sandy McAllister, and her two attendants, Mary Jo Smith and Luanna Dresbach.

Chaperons for the evening were Mr. and Mrs. Richard Boyd, Mr. and Mrs. George Young, G. A. Hartman, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Boggs.

Two bus loads of Circleville High School students will leave this Saturday for an all-day trip to the Zoological Gardens in Cincinnati. Most of the 65 students who plan to go on this trip are biology students.

George Marcum, the biology teacher, will be accompanied on the trip by the following parent supervisors: Mrs. Lawrence Johnson, Mrs. Noel Rader, Mrs. Vaden Couch, Mrs. Gerald Woodward, Mrs. Margaret Walker, and Mrs. Howard Conley.

Marcum says the trip will be very educational and also enjoyable. The Washington Township School made transportation for the trip possible.

H-Bomb Power
Harnessing Tried

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Sen. Hickenlooper (R-Iowa) has made the first known public disclosure that American scientists are trying to harness the power of the H-bomb for peaceful purposes.

Heretofore, scientists have admitted the possibility of controlling thermonuclear power, but have generally assumed it could only be used destructively.

Hickenlooper, vice chairman of the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy, did not elaborate on his statement made in a speech yesterday before the World Affairs Council of Philadelphia.

"There is a possibility of direct production of power through controlled thermonuclear reaction," he said.

George Westinghouse's air brake was the first of more than 100 patents he received as he developed his system of stopping trains.

Trucks are called lorries in Great Britain.
